Thirty-three years ago this month we asked the people of Marion and Crittenden county to believe in us. They did. At the close of the first year's business we had deposits of $50,000.00. We were encouraged. Since then, our deposits have crossed the $600,000.00 mark. We will soon move into our splendid new home at Main and Bank Streets. Where there is room, light and convenience. There is a special rest room for ladies, where they can write letters, we furnish the stationery. We want you to come and share these comforts whether you are a depositor or not.

We naturally wish that every man and woman in Crittenden county had an account with us. You don't have to be dressed up to secure courteous treatment. We are friends of workers and savers. Come right now.

DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION HELD SATURDAY

Last Saturday the democrats of this county held their county convention for the purpose of selecting delegates to the state convention held in Louisville Tuesday.

The following resolutions were adopted unanimously:

Resolved that we as democrats of Crittenden county, in convention assembled, renew our pledge of allegiance to the Democratic party, the party of progress and construction, the party which from its very beginning has never deviated from its dedication to the cause of the "greatest good to the greatest number." We believe in it because of its progressive ideals, its love for the common good, and for its devotion to the principles of liberty and justice for all humanity. We heartily and unequivocally endorse the administration of Woodrow Wilson. Its record of accomplishments during the last seven years is the most magnificent ever made by any party or any administration in any country. We are opposed to any amendments or reservations or qualifications to the Versailles peace treaty, because they are unnecessary, and because none have ever been offered which were not born of partisan bias or else intended to prevent its ratification. We favor the immediate and unqualified ratification of this treaty so that the war may be terminated, and as the best means of guaranteeing peace permanently, so that all the peoples and nations of the world may again be restored to their normal functions. We condemn the present republican Congress. In the campaign for election they promised the people they would support the president in prosecuting the war, that they would aid him in making peace and would lower the taxes, and enact the necessary alter the war legislation to put the country on a peace basis. In violation of their pledges they have refused to co-operate with the president, they have failed to either advise or consent to the peace treaty, the taxes remain as they were and instead of being lowered, they now propose to increase them, and no reconstruction legislation whatever has been enacted. We commend every agency which has aided or cooperated in the Woman Suffrage amendment to the United States Constitution. This amendment is of the most profound social and moral significance, and we welcome womanhood into the civic life of the state and nation.

The following named persons are selected as delegates from Crittenden county to the State Democratic Convention to be held in Louisville on May 4th:

By G. M. Gumbert

Green manuring or plowing under of green crops is one of the oldest means used to maintain or increase the productivity of the soil. Green manure crops are especially beneficial to clay soils. For that reason green manuring is badly needed in Crittenden county. It tends to make soil more porous and less likely to puddle or bake and much less subject to washing.

The most important object achieved is the addition of humus to the soil. Other things being equal the best green manure crops are those which furnish the largest amount of material which will readily decay in the soil, and thus form humus. There are however some plants which furnish a great deal more humus than others. Deep rooted plants are decidedly preferable to shallow ones because they penetrate into the soil in this way air and water find entrance especially after the roots decay. Thus in a way every deep rooted plant is a subsoiler. It is also supposed that such plants, especially when plowed under, tend to enrich the surface soil with potash and phosphorus from the subsoil, thus bringing the substances within reach of the shallow rooted crops. Legume plants are more valuable for green manure than other plants because they not only add humus but also use the nitrogen of the air which they add to the soil. For this reason legumes, if such are adapted to particular locality, where needed and can be sown at the time desired should be grown. Where it is not advisable to devote an entire season to the growth of a crop for green manuring, good results may often be obtained by growing catch crops between cash crops.

In Crittenden County we would recommend that you use rye or peas. Rye may be sown as a catch crop and turned under in the spring, for peas it is better to hog them down and then turn under the stems. Enough profit will be secured from the hogs to more than pay for the seed and the profit to the soil will be more than you can imagine.

Before turning under a green manure crop be sure it is cut up perfectly with a disk or similar instrument. Plowing and land may be said to be a species of green manuring, and as such would be included in this class.

Nitrogen and phosphorus are the two elements that first limit crop production here in our county. Phosphorus may be added in the form of acid phosphate or steel ground rock sulphate but it is cheaper to add nitrogen by growing legumes which are our best green manuring crops.

Why can't several progressive farmers form a partnership in their community to buy a pea threshing outfit and raise their own cow peas seed. If you would do this you would plant ten acres of peas instead of one, you would have enough hay and green forage for your stock and some to hog.

Do not plow your land while it is wet! Space forbids a full explanation but if you will call on me I shall be glad to explain my reasons fully.

DO YOU WANT A CLUB?

As you well know our Agricultural club has ceased to be an active organization with real live members. I hope the spirit has not died out but only waiting some call to service.

Our State club agent has been asked if he would give his support, but declined to do so because we have no county agent. We the children between the ages of 10 and 18 do not feel that we should be deprived of our club work so I am making an appeal to you to see if you will lend your support, by growing an acre of corn or a part of an acre of some other grain, tuber or root crop or a brood of chickens. I believe if enough will support the cause we can get the support of the state.

Prof. George Gumbert, agricultural teacher of Marion High School promises a county stock show if that should happen. We can have a County club and a county show even if the state will not help.

If any farmer or farmette or any business man or lady who has prizes to offer we would be glad that you do so at this time as you know "A prize in view causes a child to work through."

If you are interested write me within the next ten days, also tell your neighbors, for some are perhaps not readers of the Press. If enough will respond an appeal will be made in your behalf to the state agent. We will also organize a County club.

DOESN'T NEED ANY LAXATIVES NOW

Mr. Becker says life is a joy, without constipation or stomach trouble.

"I had catarrh of the stomach and head for three years. My stomach was so bad that every time I ate anything sweet, such as fruit or pastry, the burning hot water would run out of my mouth. I took a laxative every night."

"Since taking Mils' Emulsion my bowels move regularly. I have now taken two bottles and have gained 100 pounds. All my friends remark how fine I am looking, and it seems a pleasure to live again, without stomach trouble."—Helen Becker, Miami, Ohio.

Physicians usually make slaves out of their patients, and weaken the bowels instead of correcting them. Stomach trouble in many cases is directly due to constipation. Mils' Emulsion is a pleasant, nutritive food and a corrective medicine. It secures healthy, natural bowel action, doing away with all need of pills and physic. It promotes appetite and quickly puts the digestive organs in shape to assimilate food. As a builder of flesh and strength, Mils' Emulsion is strongly recommended to those whose sickness has weakened, and is a powerful aid in regaining strength and the effects of wasting diseases. Chronic stomach trouble and constipation are promptly relieved—usually in one day.

This is the only solid emulsion made, and so palatable that it is eaten with a spoon like the cream. Truly wonderful for weak, sickly children.

No matter how severe your case, you are asked to try Mils' Emulsion under this guarantee—Take six bottles home with you, use it according to directions, and if not satisfied with the results your money will be promptly refunded. Price 60¢ and 120¢ per bottle. The Mils' Emulsion Co., Terre Haute, Ind. Sold by druggists everywhere.—Adv.

ALLIES ARE AGREED AS TO DARDANELLES

INTERNATIONALIZATION OF THE STRAITS IS ARRANGED BY SUPREME COUNCIL.

TWO COMMISSIONS PLANNED

Premier Millerand Says That France Asks Her Rights, and No More—Wants Germany to Recover Economically.

San Remo. The plans for the control of the Dardanelles were formulated by the allied supreme council. The control will be exercised by two international commissions, one of those, an administrative body, will regulate the traffic, fix the dues or the use of the straits and supervise affairs generally. The other will be a military commission having at its disposal forces which will be located in other parts of Gallipoli Peninsula and in parts on the other side of the straits.

Alexander Millerand, the French premier, received the American newspaper correspondents, of whom eleven are here, and talked freely about the peace conference affairs.

"Our friendship with the American people," he said, "did not begin with 1914, but very long before that, and before you brought us the decisive help in the war, which now is such a precious recollection."

"I regret we could not have the direct active cooperation of the United States government in the preparation of the Turkish treaty here, but I am sure America will not stand apart always from European affairs. I regret much more that the United States does not participate in the discussion of Germany's treatment of the treaty of Versailles, which will be considered tomorrow."

"I am confident that the Americans, whatever their points of view respecting the Germans are, have also sympathy for the victims of Germany. The policy of France, which I have declared 20 times, is simple and entirely upon. We suffered, and Germany pledged herself by the treaty to do certain things. She has not done them."

"France asks her rights, and no more. France does not hate Germany. We wish to see her recover economically. A creditor does not wish to see his debtor ruined."

STRENGTHLESS SEEMED DYING

So Weak She Could Hardly Move, Says Indiana Lady.—One Bottle of Cardui Put Her on the Road to Recovery.

Tanger, Ind.—"Four years ago this summer I was sick in bed," writes Mrs. Little McElwain, of this place. "I had been under the doctor's care for five weeks. . . . I was pretty bad, and I was just as nervous as I could be. . . . I could not sleep at night until 10 or 12 o'clock. When I would doze off and wake up I would be all of a tremble with nervousness."

"The doctor called my trouble catarrh of the . . . It gave me such pains that at each one it would seem that I could not bear another one. Then I would chill . . . the pains would just seem to shake me all over, and the next day I would be so weak I could hardly move. I would be so utterly strengthless that it would seem as if I were dying."

"After one of my bad spells . . . and I had almost died, I picked up the Home Treatment Book and decided to try Cardui. Before I had taken a whole bottle, I could sleep at night. . . . I don't remember just how long, but in a short time I was up and helping with the work. . . ."

The Largest Animal.

Most boys have seen pictures of the huge lizard which roamed the earth millions of years ago, and is supposed to be the largest animal which ever lived. Searches in Utah have discovered some bones of an animal which was twice the size of this great prehistoric animal. A hole 200 feet long and 50 feet deep had been dug when some one claimed the find. The government thereupon created a National Dinosaur Monument, comprising the locality, which will be protected until the investigations are finished. The work is being directed by the Carnegie Institute, which discovered and assembled the skeleton of the feebler dinosaur.—Boys' Life for March.

URIC ACID IN MEAT CLOGS THE KIDNEYS

Take a Glass of Salts if Your Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers.

If you must have your meat every day, eat it, but flush your kidneys with salts occasionally, says a noted authority who tells us that meat forms uric acid which attacks and paralyzes the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken, then you suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sour, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night.

To counteract these irritating acids, to cleanse the kidneys and flush of the body's urinous waste get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithium and sodium, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize the acids in urine, so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, cannot injure, and makes a delightful effervescent lithia water drink.—Adv.

Ribbon by the Mile.

Ribbon is being sold by the mile in stand of the yard at one of the W. W. C. A. branches in New York city this month. This is a new method of selling small gifts among the association members for the national fund which is being raised by campaigns throughout the country this spring. At this association center given ribbon sells for so much a mile, and that portion of the mile bought is supposed to be worn by the buyer, so that one's generosity is measured by the amount of ribboning she can accomplish with her purchases. This decorative contest is carried on among members of the association clubs and their friends.

DEWS OF EVE

No More Gentle Than "Cascarets" for the Liver, Bowels

It is just as needless as it is dangerous to take violent or nasty cathartics. Nature provides no shock absorbers for your liver and bowels against cholera, harsh pills, sickening oil and salts. Cascarets give quick relief without injury from Constipation, Bilelessness, Indigestion, Flashes and Sick Headache. Cascarets work while you sleep, removing the toxins, poisons and sour, indigestible waste without griping or inconvenience. Cascarets regulate by strengthening the bowel muscles. They cost so little too.—Adv.

LADY LARKSPUR

By MEREDITH NICHOLSON

Copyright by Charles Scribner's Sons

"DON'T BE A FOOL!"

Hynopala—Richard Hearles, successful American playwright, confided to his friend, Bob Singleton, the fact that, inspired by the genius of a young actress whom he had seen in London, he had written a play, "Lady Larkspur," solely with the thought that she should interpret the leading character. This girl, Violet Lovell, had disappeared and Hearles refused to allow the play to be produced with anyone else in the part. Singleton has just returned from a visit to France, where he had been serving in the aviation corps. His uncle, Raymond Hynopala, a wealthy man, had contracted a marriage a short time before his death, while on a visit to his left Singleton a comparatively small amount of money and the privilege of residence in the "country" of his summer home, Hynopala-on-the-Bound, Connecticut. Mrs. Hynopala is believed to be traveling in the Orient. The household at Hynopala is made up of solely the employees of the house. A New York hotel, where Hynopala had his home. By the terms of his will these people are to have a home at Hynopala for the rest of their lives. Singleton goes to Hynopala, taking with him the manuscript of "Lady Larkspur." There he finds the household strangely upset, some of its members being suspected by their comrades of profiteering. Antoine, head of the establishment, informs him that he has been perplexed by the somewhat mysterious visits of a stranger, apparently foreigner, seeking Mrs. Hynopala. Antoine has formed the male members of the household into a guard for protection. Singleton reads "Lady Larkspur," with approval. "And Alice," arrives unexpectedly, turns with a lively reception and meets out to be young and charming. Mrs. Hynopala is her traveling companion.

CHAPTER II—Continued.

Antoine departed with a resentful twist of the shoulders, and I decided to meet squarely the matter of the visitors who had so troubled him.

"Please don't be frightened," I said as lightly as possible, "but these old fellows haven't enough to do, and they are full of apprehensions. They have been alarmed by an agent of some sort who wants to welcome you to America by selling you a piano on easy payments."

Antoine had been hovering inside, and my remark brought him to the door.

"Dog garden, Mr. Singleton, but that party is not an agent, but quite different, sir. He came to the house, quite a gentleman, several times, and asked if Mrs. Hynopala had arrived. He came in a big car, and seemed disappointed, because, that you were not here and not expected. A very well-spoken gentleman, and would have thought nothing of it except that a few days later I caught a man I was sure was the same party, but dressed in rough clothes, sneaking across the veranda right there where you sit. When I called to him he ran as hard as he could, and I guessed he'd be the vegetable gardener—saw him leaving the property by the back way."

"It's hardly possible that a man who impressed you as a gentleman when you saw him at the door should have returned in disguise and tried to break into the house."

"Oh," exclaimed Mrs. Farnsworth, "it would be so much more delightful if that were true! Any one in disguise is bound to be interesting. A disguise suggests most beautiful possibilities."

I could not be sure in the dim light of the veranda, but I thought I detected a white slipper cautiously reach out and touch a black one. At any rate, Mrs. Farnsworth lapsed into silence.

"Thank you very much, Antoine," said Alice. "It is very proper for you to tell me anything of my stranger on the property, but I see nothing here to be alarmed about. If the same gentleman calls again, let me know instantly."

"Very good, madame. And then, turning as though conferring upon me a part of his responsibility for the security of the premises: 'It's a party with a whip; just a trilling flump, sir; you'd hardly notice it. A smallish man, rather dark, with a little mustache turned up at the ends.'"

"I have noted all those details, Antoine," I replied; and again I thought there was a telegraphic exchange between the ladies though this time a black slipper was the means of communication.

Torrence arrived in a moment, and nothing has ever given me keener joy than his shock of surprise at beholding Mrs. Hynopala. I was devotedly grateful that he had not been present at the dinner-table, for my own efforts to interest Torrence in anything but the most practical matters had always been highly unsuccessful, and the discussion of ghosts and witches would hardly have amused him. As Mrs. Farnsworth and I took up the recent movements on the western front I overheard Torrence putting all the machinery of the trust company at Mrs. Hynopala's disposal. It seemed almost a blasphemy to be talking of income and life matters to a woman like Alice Hynopala!

They continued their conference for some time, but I got nothing out of Mrs. Farnsworth that shed any light on my aunt's history beyond what she had told me herself, which was precious little. Mrs. Farnsworth's talk was that of a cultivated woman. Her voice interested me unconsciously; the tones had all manner of shadings and inflections; it was curiously musical, but in speaking of the great war a passionate note crept into it that stirred me deeply.

"This has been a dark year for Alice," she remarked. "Mr. Hynopala's death, followed quickly by that of her brother—my only son—piled a cruel burden of grief upon the dear child. She wants to go back to England to nurse the wounded, but I want to keep her here a little while until she can readjust herself. It is my task to encourage her in frivolity and the make-believe she loves—hence our absurdities at the table. She's the dearest child, but with wonderful understanding. And at times it's not easy to keep the divine spark of play alive in her heart."

The light of one of the porch lamps fell upon Alice's face as she patiently gave heed to Torrence's account of his stewardship. One of her hands gently stroked the terrors that lay quietly in a chair beside her. I was sure that his painstaking description of assets and market values was boring her. Once her voice rose in exasperation. Torrence, I judged, was suggesting that legal means could be found to expel the old Tynningham employees from the Barton property.

"Oh, never in the world! It was quite like Mr. Hynopala to want to cure for these people in their old age. And—she laughed and turned toward me—"they can't be dislodged while Bob lives; and we don't want to part with him just yet."

I was glad to have him hear her address me in this intimate fashion. Torrence always inspired in me a desire to shock him.

"I shall help Alice to break them in, Torrence," I said, lingering upon her name for his special edification.

"Of course, Singleton," he replied. "I wasn't sure you meant to stay on. Pardon me, but I didn't."

"Oh, it isn't that Bob hasn't a right to stay," said Alice quickly. "Mrs. Farnsworth and I are hoping that he will like us well enough to share our exile on other accounts."

"I am engaging Mr. Singleton to explain American jokes to me," announced Mrs. Farnsworth. "Alice seems to get them, but I never sure."

It is a part of Torrence's business to counsel widows, when he does like the honorable man he is, but as he rose to go presently, remarking that his wife would nod down to call shortly, I caught a glimpse of his face that indicated deep perplexity. I left when he did.

"Those Women Are Under Suspicion."

"I want to talk to you," he said nervously when we were outside. "I'll send the car ahead to the gate."

When the shrubbery cut us off from the house he stopped abruptly and seized my arm. "What do you make of it?" he demanded.

"Make of what?" I asked.

"That girl," he exclaimed testily.

"If you insist, I must avow that she's adorable, nothing else."

"Don't be a fool! You know Raymond Hynopala much better than I did, and you know perfectly well he never married a young girl of that sort! Those women are playing a trick, and I'm surprised that you don't see through it."

"My uncle was a man of taste and a gentleman," I answered deliberately. "There's nothing in the least improbable in his being infatuated with a young woman of charm and wit like this girl."

"I tell you it won't do," he insisted. "If either of those women at the house is Raymond Hynopala's widow, it's the one who calls herself Farnsworth. They're playing a game of some kind, and it's no laughing matter, but it won't take long to find out what they're up to."

"You'll hardly go the length of having them arrested as impostors, Torrence—not without some data to work on."

"Certainly not. You seem to be hitting it off with both of them, but I advise you to be on guard. Are you sure your uncle never sent you his wife's photograph? That would have been a perfectly natural thing to do."

"If I'd got a photograph, I should have headed for Japan, not for France," I laughed, but I was thinking deeply. His line of reasoning was not so different from my own that I could sneer at his suspicions. I shrank from telling him that I did care a hang whether the widow was a fraud or not, and the two women who had settled themselves on the Barton estate were imposters, they were extraordinarily daring and clever.

We were pouring a gateway where his car waited, and I saw several of the guard hanging about at a discreet distance. "Look here, Singleton," he said angrily, "you don't seem to take this business very seriously. You don't want to make the mistake of letting a pretty girl pull the wool over your eyes." He lowered his voice and added tensely: "Those women are under suspicion of something more serious than an attempt to rob an estate. An agent of the state department called on me yesterday and asked embarrassing questions about Mrs. Hynopala. Not a secret service man, you understand, or anything of that kind, but an important man in the state department."

"Of course you knew nothing to tell," I suggested.

"I took a chance at lying to him about her expected arrival. I thought it only decent to have a look at the woman first. He told me nothing except that the British embassy had made inquiries, and that the matter was delicate and must be handled carefully."

"Was this inquiry made—a small dark man with a black mustache?" I asked, suddenly interested. "Such a person has been hanging about here, so the boys tell me?"

"Not at all! I may as well tell you it was Raynor—you probably remember him. He's a specialist in international law, and they took him into the state department just after the last war. He's a gentleman and a good fellow—I've played golf with him a good deal—and I wanted to be like him, but I thought I'd see this woman before telling him she had reached America."

"I confess that I was a trifle dismayed by this. Raynor is slightly. Professionally and socially he stood high, and even without the prestige of his official position he was not a clump to sneeze at; but I didn't want Torrence to know I had any doubts as to the perfect authenticity of my uncle's widow."

"Oh, every transcontinental pilgrim is probably scrutinized closely these days," I remarked carelessly. "Mrs. Hynopala has lost a brother in the war, and I haven't heard anyone talk more bitterly against Germany. And her companion certainly has no illusions about the Kaiser."

"I don't like the business," he declared stubbornly.

"Let's do nothing foolish," I insisted. "If Raynor has reason to suspect either or both of these women, we'll hear further from him."

"I've put myself in a hole," he said, angrily. "Of course I've got to advise him immediately that Mrs. Hynopala is here."

"Just wait a few days; I undertake to keep them under surveillance; you can put the whole responsibility on me. If they attempt to leave, I'll warn you and Raynor instantly, but they have settled themselves as though they expected to spend the rest of their lives here."

I told him of Mrs. Hynopala's adventures in reaching the house without convincing him that there was anything funny in her experiences, and he left on my promise to report to him daily at a given hour and instantly if anything unusual occurred. I was on my way back through the grounds when Antoine arrested me.

"Pardon me, but I'd like to ask what you think of it, sir?" he asked humbly, filling into step.

"If you mean what do I think of Mrs. Hynopala," I replied sharply. "I think she's quite charming and delightful and all any one could risk in every way."

"The guard's set, sir; front and rear."

GIVE STIMULATION TO GENIUS

Toxins Manufactured in Man's Own System Powerfully Affect the Associative Faculties.

Genius is a question of sensitization of protoplasm—it goes back to physical fact. And the foundation of the greatest cathedral of beauty ever erected by the mind of genius rests squarely upon the flesh of a man's body, writes Jeanette Marks in the Yale Review. Sensitized protoplasm vibrates in answer to outside impressions, with concentric waves of varying diameter. The stimulated, sensitized protoplasm sets the associative faculties to work, and the bigger this associative faculty, the bigger the genius. It is just here in the morbid stimulation of protoplasm that toxins, drugs, alcohol, enter in. Disorder reigns supreme, chaos, noise, nervousness, near-madness, through the stimulation of some toxins manufactured in a man's own system. Tea, coffee, drugs, alcohol, seem temporarily at least to put the mental furniture in order, to bring harmony where there has been disorder. Opium is not genius. Madness is not genius. But both would sometimes appear to have the power to set as unripe for genius where its right to go forward is in question. And it would seem that the purchasing power in genius was even greater in insanity than with either alcohol or opium.

It must be admitted by every far-sighted, intelligent person, that a medicine could not live and grow in popularity for over forty years, and today hold a record for such wonderful success as does Lydia E. ## Conserve the Coal Pile with a Cahill Furnace

THERE is a secret back of the economy and heating qualities of Cahill Pipeless Furnaces. This secret is found in the castings—the parts of a furnace that count for most when the fire is laid and started. The Cahill castings are unusually heavy, thick and carefully fitted and finished, and when once heated they retain heat longer than most furnaces, thereby saving fuel and throwing off a greater and more uniform heat. Moreover, the heavy Cahill castings will withstand wear better than castings less sturdily made, which means less replacing of parts is required in a Cahill Furnace than in ordinary furnaces.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

$2.00, per year cash in advance

The overall fad—and fad it is—is another foolish idea which will accomplish about the opposite of its aim. Already due to the increased demand and the alertness of the manufacturers to seize on every pretext to boost prices, the price of overalls has gone up, bringing a direct injury to the man of slender means who is compelled to wear overalls. This is no time to shift the demand from one commodity to another. Let the well-to-do stick to their worsteds and the laboring men to their overalls and the profiteers will be cheated out of another opportunity to gouge the private purse.—York Republican

The Kansas City Star is authority for the statement that print paper sold as high as 15 cents a pound at wholesale in New York last week. That is seven times what it sold for three years ago. With this condition staring them in the face, many publishers will be forced to suspend their publications. No newspaper could be published continuously at the present subscription rate if the price of print remains where it is today. We are all in the same boat, drawing upon our accumulation of going in debt to buy paper to make good our subscription contracts. In the hopes that something may "turn up" to relieve the situation and permit us again to make a nominal profit on our energies and investment. In the job printing department the advancing prices can be passed on to the ultimate consumer. But it is not an easy matter to do this with the publication of a paper. In the first place subscribers are paid in advance—some of them as far as one or two years—and this constitutes a contract with the publisher which must be fulfilled regardless of what it costs him. Even should we attempt to raise our subscription price to where it belongs, there is grave question as to what extent the ordinary subscriber will go in the matter of accepting a justified advance. A newspaper must retain its subscription list in order to make its advertising space which is another important source of revenue and which must be zealously guarded in her hopes to meet the conditions of the day. It is in no sense a rosy outlook for the publisher who has all invested in his business. But he hasn't other alternative except to meet it, and do the best he can to keep his head above water until conditions return to normal, when he may again hope to receive a reasonable remuneration for his service and expenditures.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Harriet Caroline Towery was born August 13, 1845. Professed faith in Christ at the age of eighteen during a protracted meeting at Mt. Zion Methodist Church and joined the church there. When the family moved out west she transferred her membership to a Methodist church in Texas, and later to Prairie Grove, Ark. She lived a devout christian until called to her reward, April 23, 1920. She was the mother of four children. They are Frank, of Marion, Ill., Wiley of Denver Colorado, Mary and Margaret at home. She was also the stepmother of five children. Sister Towery was a devoted mother, a splendid neighbor and to know her was to love her. She and the two girls have lived together for so long that the home will never be the same because mother is gone. The funeral was conducted by Rev. W. T. Oakley in the Towery Cemetery, in the presence of a large and sympathetic audience. An old landmark is gone. The grave was covered with pretty flowers. A loved one from us is gone, a voice we loved is still, a place is vacant in our home which never can be filled.

Making the Grade.

While on a motor trip through southern Indiana we came to a steep hill. The driver put on all the power he could, but it was impossible to climb such a hill. In despair our driver walked to a house atop the hill to see if he could get help. In a few minutes he returned smiling and said the man at the house had advised him to turn the car around and back up. We all laughed, but were soon turned around and slowly backing up the hill. We were about half way up when we saw another machine coming, and as soon as it reached the foot of the hill it turned around and began backing up. When we reached the top the man at the house greeted us and remarked that all cars had to make that hill backward.—Chicago Tribune.

NOTHING TO GO BUT WORK!

When One Thinks of It, It Is Rather a Foolish Way to Spend One's Lifetime.

The most common complaint we hear from everybody we know is that they can't keep up with all there is to do. We make the same complaint. Like you all, we undertake to do seventeen thousand things more than the hours of the day will permit us to do.

It is an awful mistake. To be driven like a galley slave is the rule we have made for our lives. And, oh, to quit it all, or to quit all but the things we would like to do and are worth while!

To never catch up, to never know what it is not to be tired—it is a foolish way to spend a lifetime. This one and only lifetime that is ours.

And what are we to do about it? Cut loose and run away? We guess it is the only thing to do.—Los Angeles Times.

Things Not What They Seem.

It happened in Munich. One of the city's socially prominent and beautiful young women was tripping along on a moon street when she met the wife of the pastor of her church.

MUSIC OF ANCIENT GREECE

Bands That Marched to War With the Soldiers Played on Flutes, Pipes and Harps.

Poetry in ancient Greece was accompanied by the cithara and the lyre, while the flute was played by both men and women in furnishing martial music to the soldiers in time of war. Musical bands marched to war with the soldiers and played on flutes, pipes and harps.

The lyre and the harp were preferred by the Greeks for private use, for it was thought they did not prevent one from remaining master of himself, while the flute, pipe or clarinet put the man beside himself and obscured reason. There were extensive choirs whose music was distinctly connected with the religious life of the people. These choirs were composed of both men and women and were employed for public and private religious festivals.

The choirs celebrated victories in war, deaths, holy days, births and marriages. Alkibiades, who lived as early as 450 B. C., wrote a choral song for girls which was a dramatic part song.

The Tide of Immigration. Thirty-three million people have made the long voyage from alien shores to our own since liberty's eternal fire was kindled first in American soil.

Tommy's Excuse Rather a Poor One, but He Was in a Mighty Tight Corner.

The village schoolmaster had done very well with his war savings association. The scholars brought in their pennies regularly every week; some even had as much as a shilling to subscribe.

One Monday morning Mrs. Bates gave her son Tommy the sum of three-pence to pay in. On his return for dinner the good lady asked to see his card.

"Look here, Tommy," she said sternly, "there's only twopenny entered here! How is that?"

Tommy grew pale as he saw that his shilling had found him out. But the teacher in the village shop had been so tempting. However, he did his best.

"Yes, mother," he stammered, "that's all the ink the teacher had."—London Answers.

High Aspirations.

"You are fond of school, aren't you, dear?" asked a teacher of a pupil who had just finished his first week.

"W'y, Miss Andrews," replied the little tot, "I mean to go to all the schools there is until I study all the histories there is until I study the highest one. I mean to study the history of the angels, even."

Little Perfections of Finish

DRESSING the young girl from about eight to sixteen years continues to make employment for expert designers who specialize in making clothes for all the younger generation. They know the needs of the little girls—thin ones and fat ones and all the rest—the characteristics of their immature figures and how to make them look their best. They appear this season to be giving much attention to details of finish in frocks and in variation in the cut and construction of them. Combinations of plain and figured materials and the management of the plaids, checks and stripes, that brighten the everyday dress of children.

To illustrate the last point, in the dress shown at the left of the picture above the skirt, sleeves and waist are cut on the straight of the material, but a tunic at the front of the bodice and the pockets are cut on the bias. There is a white bar in the gingham which leads up to the white collar and cuffs and white facings on the pockets, finished off by white buttons that are set at each side of the panel.

Thin chambray trimmed with plaid gingham makes the neat dress at the right. The skirt has a border of gingham at the bottom, double box plait at the front and back and is shirred on the sides at the waistline. The bodice is cut out at each side to reveal the shirring and where it is attached to the skirt at the front three white buttons are set on. The collar, tie, cuffs and sash are all of gingham. Black slippers and stockings are worn with these everyday dresses.

Plain chambray and other plain cottons are lately made for dress wear with organdie collars. French knots and a little simple needlework are used for their decoration. Basted Swiss for dress-up and party use is prettily made with very narrow, pleated edge, fabric ribbon used with ticks as its ornament; the ribbon matching the dot in the Swiss in color. The prices on dresses of this kind have advanced to the place where most mothers find them too high; they are undertaking this sewing at home.

Choosing Your Silhouette

IN A SEASON that offers so much diversity in styles as we find this spring, women have all sorts of opportunity to please themselves, and therefore individualism has marked this time for its own. So many periods and so many lands have been drawn upon for inspirations! But they are only inspirations that lend a flavor more or less strong to the various styles of today.

Naturally, in this case, the silhouette swings all the way between very wide hip lines and the straight up-and-down figure, as may be gathered from the illustration of two afternoon frocks which appear here. One of these frocks is made of blue tulle silk with a few small embroidered motifs emphasizing its style features. In the enclosed panel at each side of the skirt supporting wires, corded edges and the texture of the silk insure a wide hip effect without compelling the use of much silk. A little embroidery appears on this side drape and on the front of the plain but old over-bodice. There is a long apron drape over the front of the skirt, and the back drape is a trifle shorter. As silk is still very high, it is worth noting that drop skirts are made of a cheaper material, having a deep border of silk at the bottom, and this is the case in the frock pictured. Dark blue and black tulle frocks were never better style than this season, and designers have fairly surpassed themselves in making beautiful afternoon frocks of them. Short or three-quarter length sleeves and lace or net sleeves prevail in the styles. Those with flaring cuffs, like the picture, are very popular.

The handsome dress of tulle, with its tulle down the front, its deeply fringed sash of crepe de chine and its plain sleeves cut to three carries no drama of tulle in these details which is discernible in many suits as well as in afternoon and mid-day dresses. At each side of the skirt there are plaited panels and the sash used is in a contrasting color lighter than the material used in the frock. A black dress with a lime sash or a navy with American Beauty sash are fine color combinations.

Julia Bottomly

The New Feathers.

A new straw is much in evidence and varnished straw in tube form, cut into short lengths and stitched on to a foundation of net. It looks rather like the heads which enterprising youngsters used to make from macaroni. Feathers are much worn and may either be in stiff quills, stuck on, proper fashion, or in a straight, waving mass of fronds entirely covering the hat.

Corrugated Sports Gown.

A sports gown has a corrugated skirt of deep green silk with a green jersey. The sleeves and neck are edged with yellow.

Fetching Linen Smock.

Orange yellow linen makes a fetching smock. The collar is in sailor style and the sleeves reach the elbow with turnback cuffs. The slash pocket, the flared hip gown, the collar and cuffs are edged with small tabs of white cotton tape an inch wide.

Fashionograms.

A recent opening featured among other things the long tight sleeves and classical draperies which crossed in front over long skirts. Gilt hoops were used under chiffon. Waists showed embroidery and were topped with lawn collars and capes. Tulle, as one might expect, constituted a very popular feature.

Short Sleeves for Spring. Seven-eighths and shorter sleeves are to be seen on many suit jackets for spring, but these appear only on the outskirts of novelty cut; on the much-beloved, generally acceptable tailored models the sleeves are wrist length as usual.

You Into Consumption

Avoid Its Dangerous Stage.

There is a more serious stage of Catarrh than the annoyance caused by the stopped-up air passages, and the hacking and spitting and other distasteful features.

The real danger comes from the tendency of the disease to continue its course downward until the lungs become affected, and then dread consumption is on your path. Your own experience has taught you that the disease cannot be cured by sprays, inhalers, jellies and other local applications. S. S. S. is an excellent system-clearer; it is not sold or recommended for Venereal Diseases.

S. S. S. has proven a most satisfactory remedy for Catarrh because it goes direct to its source, and tends to remove the germ of the disease from the blood. Get a bottle from your druggist today, and begin the only logical treatment that gives real results. For free medical advice, write to Medical Director, 104 Swift Laboratory, Atlanta, Ga.

Thousands of letters testify to its curative properties. M. Timmerlin, a reputable dry goods dealer in Durant, Oklahoma, says: "I suffered with Eczema for ten years, and spent $1,000.00 for doctors' treatments, without result. One box of Hunt's Cure entirely cured me."

The Whole Secret of A Better Tire

Simply a Matter of the Maker's Policies

This you will realize—once you try a Brunswick—that a super-tire is possible only when the name certifies that the maker is following the highest standards.

For tire making is chiefly a matter of standards and policies—cost plus care. Any maker can build a good tire if he cares to pay perfection's price.

All men know Brunswick standards, for Brunswick products have been famous for 74 years.

Formulas, fabrics and standards vary vastly in cost. Reinforcements, plies and thickness are a matter of expense. And these variations affect endurance. It rests with the maker how far he wishes to go—how much he can afford to give.

For there are no secrets nor patents to hold one back.

To ascertain what each maker offers one must analyze and test some 200 tires—as our laboratories have done.

Then it is a matter of combining the best features and building according to the highest standards.

Once you try a Brunswick you will understand how we have built model tires, regardless of factory expense.

Yet Brunswick Tires cost you the same as other like-type tires. Our saving is on selling cost, through our nation-wide organization.

We realize that you expect more from Brunswicks, and we assure you that you get it. ONE Brunswick will tell you the story.

And then you'll want ALL Brunswicks. No other tire, you'll agree, gives so much for your money.

INTERESTING LETTER FROM MRS. HARPENDING

Mr. Editor and readers of the Crittenden Press—While it rains let me come and visit and chat with you awhile.

The health in our neighborhood is fairly good, that terrible and deadly flu has about made its disappearance from this community, but Oh! the many sad homes it has left behind.

Well dear readers the much looked for Spring is again making its appearance. We can look out and see the old and young trees putting on their coats of green, the grass is shooting their tiny heads through the ground to beautify Mother Earth again, the fruit trees are in full bloom, the little birds are as busy as bees, and especially the sweetest of birds—the mocking bird, are listening to the mocking bird.

The farmers are all busy plowing and planting their crops, the good housewife is always busy from early morn till late at night taking care of her little "tots" preparing meals for her tired husband, milking, churning, taking care of the butter, washing and ironing, and there is the setting of hens to be done, the baby chicks to care for, and eggs to gather up in the evening, and when the basket is full the plow must stop and take them to market before the price comes down, for it isn't for eggs our tables would be poorly furnished these hard times, with provisions of all kinds so high. We poor farmers that make anything to sell have to take what we can get and then we buy our groceries and things we are compelled to have from these same people and pay them their own price, or do with, out them but we think we see a silver lining behind the clouds for us for we now have the Federal Highway running through the middle of our farm but I don't care as long as I can sit out in front of the house and see so much traffic and hauling all the time. But our old eyes have got tired seeing so much so we will let it start where it is and it may be that if our great, great grand children live to be as old as we are, they may see this road, as we see it in our imagination, but none of us will care which way it goes.

Well Mr. Editors how are you on woman's suffrage? Are you for or against it? As for myself I do not think it nice for a woman to go to the polls and vote. I think her place is in the home attending to house hold affairs. If she is entitled to vote I think she is entitled to work the roads and pay her poll tax same as a man. While we have lots of women that are well educated and well posted on government affairs and know how to vote, there are many others like myself, that would not know what they were voting for, but I will drop that subject and say a few words to the younger set especially to our young boys. Now boys and girls I am seventy-six years old, and I want you to remember, and not forget what I say to you. If you live to be grown up men and women and wander away from home, remember one thing, don't forget your mother as long as you live you will be little folks to her, they never think you grow up when you were little. Always your mother did more for you than any one else would ever do. She went day after day, year after year, doing hard, disagreeable things for you. I know this is not so with some of you girls and boys, but I want to say it to all of you.

It was mother who sat by you at mid-night, when you were sick, trying to soothe you, and cool your fevered brow, shedding tears and praying to God to not let the little spark of life go out. It was mother who went to tie up the stubbed toe, to pick the thorn out of your foot or finger, or get something out of your eye. It was mother who rocked you to sleep and put you to bed and kissed you "good night".

If you are away from home write her a letter every week so that she will know you are well, and that you think of her. For when you are away from home, you are the last thing she thinks of at night so boys remember and love your mothers. I have read in the papers of so many of our dear boys being killed in France on the field of battle and their last words would be "tell mother".

Well dear readers the sun shines bright in our old Kentucky home this morning, and all nature seems gay, and while I am too feeble to get out and enjoy spring time as I once did, I am glad to see that others can. Here is a little stanza that I used to say when I was a child, when spring had come:

"The lark is up to meet the sun
The bee is in the wing,
The ant, his labors has begun
The woods with music ring."

So now young people, get out and have a good time while you are young, you will get old some day. Girls go straight and do not do anything you would not want mother to know. I will stop and wish a gentle spring-time, a happy spring-time to all. MRS. VICTORIA H. HARPENDING.

OBITUARY

Waller Hughey Wigginton was born November 7, 1873 and died April 25, 1920 at the age of 46 years five months and twelve days. He was married to Flora Scott May 29, 1898. To this union were born five children, three boys and two girls, Victor, Leora, Vera, Arthur and James all living. He professed faith in Christ while young and united with the Cumberland Presbyterian Church at Flat Rock and was elected elder and so remained until death. He died in Evansville Indiana after an operation. The funeral was conducted by Rev. W. T. Oakley at the family residence in the presence of a very large number of friends. Walter numbered his friends by the score and no man was more appreciated than he. He leaves to mourn their loss a wife, four children, three grand children, a mother, two sisters, three brothers and a host of relatives and friends. He was a grand son of Uncle Dock Green, that wonderful character that so many people know. The body was laid to rest in the Livingston Cemetery. The floral offerings were beautiful. The home, the community and the church will miss him. I speak the voice of many people when I say he was a good man. "Safe in the arms of Jesus, safe on His tender breast, there by His love unfailing, sweetly thy soul shall rest."
